CHAPTER VII
Joanna Makes a Decision

After a time the girl, huddled on the floor in a heap of bobbled brown hair and clinging gown and silver-studded leggings, stifled the birth of a new sob and stopped the convulsive tremor of her bare, velvet soft shoulders. Her eyes, as quick to dry as to dim with moisture, which is the way of youth, selected a spot on the parlor carpet, just beyond her toes, and fixed on it. So she sat very quiet and stared, straightening out the jumble of her bitter, very bitter thoughts. She realized that she couldn't think sensibly for the things that had happened during the hectic day were not sensible things—any of them.

It was a trait of hers to rebel when things weren't right; she couldn't analyze, or probe for reasons, or ask herself if she were to blame. That is, she could ask if she were to blame when things got into a jumble, but her invariable answer was "No!" Time was when the spirit of Joanna was submissive and amenable to discipline, and to the learning of lessons out of experience. That was a long time ago—before she had to make her own way about and compete with other girls—with the ones who were on the square, as well as those who weren't. She gradually lost her sense of submissiveness then. Whoever criticized her, except herself, was wrong. As her tongue grew sharper, more and more accustomed to giving than it received, and her lips grew redder and more provocative, and her skirts became shorter, everybody—

Even John! The one thing she admitted loved. Even he could never understand a girl—a real, square and above-board girl who had to fight like the devil to keep up with the other girls of this day and age! John had objected to almost everything she did or wore or said. "Hed preach by the hour. Once, in this same parlor—this dingy, frayed heaven-will-protect-the-working-girl's drawing room only! John had brought her a lot of clippings from a newspaper. Some funny old bishop had said young women ought to wear Mother Hubbards or something like that, and somebody else so old-fashioned that he read bedtime stories had told the newspapers that in his day girls didn't take an occasional drink out of their partner's flask. Good Lord! In his day! He and Noah were so busy adventuring a flood in their young days they couldn't appreciate having to take a nip of something else besides water just to keep up appearances! And John couldn't

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Coniston, Ontario. "After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in hospital, I returned home so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pain and suffering until I thought sure there could not be any help for me. I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your Compound. I started a second bottle, I took it, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and have also used the Sanative Wash." Mrs. L. E. LESTER, Box 108, Coniston, Ontario.

Manx Oath Is Extraordinary

Plague Required Of Descent of Isle of Man.

The following is an extraordinary oath taken by the descendant of the Isle of Man, on entering office.

"By this Book, and by the Holy Contents thereof, and by the Wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrought in the Heaven above and in the Earth beneath, in six days and seven nights, I the person being sworn do swear that I will without respect, favor or friendship, love or gain, consanguinity or affinity, say or make, execute the laws of this Isle justly befitting our Sovereign Lord the King and his subjects within this Isle, and befitting party and party, as indifferent as the herring's backbone doth lie in the midst of the sea. So help me God and the Contents of this Book." This oath has been taken by many descendants for a thousand years.

the five hundred dollars, and nobody knows what a God-send it would be to me, in the pocket of your old wrap. The coat's on your bed, now. If you say it come to you all right, like you say before, I'll take it, dear, and bless you for it."

Joanna scrambled onto her feet, straightened her frock, brought a strap that had fallen back onto her shoulder and, without a word, ran up the stairs to her room. When she reappeared she held the bill. She put it into Mrs. Adams' hand and folded the worn fingers about it. Neither she nor the landlady spoke. Mrs. Adams pulled the bobbed head down and kissed it.

"For once," Joanna remarked, when she straightened up, "I want a drink. I'm going to wait until George comes in. If she makes it early enough, and if her boy doesn't get the air too quick I'll buy them a taxi while we hunt an all-night bootlegger."

George arrived, early—on a clock. Her complexion at the evening was sufficiently equipped to supply Joanna's unaccustomed need, and glad of the excuse for lingering over his dismissal. Joanna's bitterness was mellowed, but far from banished; when a streak of gray, stealing across the court of a world backwards, warned the two plumed-clad girls propped up in Joanna's bed, that if they were to have any sleep at all against the excitement of the day, in some they must get between the covers and trust to the household to awaken them. Many houses had been built, some of stone that were destined to stand forever, some cards that would be blown away.

Learning Language By Radio

Much Better For Correct Pronunciation Than Book Instruction

Canada will take special interest in an experiment made in France for the purpose of determining whether languages can be successfully taught by means of radio. An important radio broadcasting company is giving a course in the English language, an eminent teacher of English having been engaged with that view. For a certain time twice during every week, he instructs all who care to listen in, and the originators of the plan anticipated that his pupils would be counted well in the hundreds of thousands. English has become a popular tongue in France, and its commercial value can hardly be overrated.

Quite aside from its usefulness as a means of enlarging the number of persons who can converse in English, the experiment of the French radio concern has many other implications. It suggests, it points to an easy way of instructing all natives in the employment of foreign tongues. The plan has the distinct advantages of teaching proper pronunciation of words, extremely difficult as that is by any method of book instruction, and also accustoming the ear to the particular language employed. This would be of advantage in Canada, where appeal is being made to English speakers to acquire a working knowledge of French, the tongue of our Quebec compatriots.

English-speaking peoples have the credit, rightly or wrongly, of assuming a somewhat contemptuous attitude towards the acquisition of foreign languages. That, undoubtedly, was the case at one period, but it is safe to say that at the present time appreciation of the value attaching to a knowledge of the culture and literature of other nations was never so widely diffused. Obstacles to this were imposed by imperfect methods of teaching and the introduction, at early stages, of niceties of grammar and construction more readily acquired later. Learning by radio seems to make the closest approach to mastering a tongue by absorption, attentive listening being all that can be required from a student.

Beacon Regulated By Sun

Helps to Direct Aircraft at Croydon Airfield

Lighting automatically at sundown and going out at dawn, an acetylene beacon installed at the London terminal airfield at Croydon, helps to direct aircraft to and from the fields and requires practically no attention. A so-called sun valve controls the supply of gas which is taken from a storage tank in the base. This valve is so sensitive to light that it closes in the morning and opens again at night or whenever darkness occurs for some other reason. Removal of the gas tank is about the only work that need be done and one container holds a supply sufficient for several weeks.

On Ancient Casket

Wooden Coffin 3,000 Years Old In British Museum of Fine Arts

In the Egyptian department of the British Museum of Fine Arts, under glass and occupying a place of honor, is a wooden coffin more than 3,000 years old, which has yielded information of numerous details of Egyptian customs.

It was discovered by the Harvard University Museum of Fine Arts expedition while excavating a rock-cut tomb near the modern village of Deir-el-Berabeh, 175 miles south of Cairo on the east bank of the Nile. The find included two coffins, or sarcophagi, each with an inner and outer case, both of which are now mounted in the museum.

At first glance this ancient casket looks like an old packing case. Closer inspection shows ingenious joinery of heavy planks of cedar of Lebanon, which were imported into Egypt from Syria for that purpose. Around the outside of the cedar chest is a band of painted figures; inside the case is decorated with beautifully painted figures and carved hieroglyphic inscriptions, so minute and so closely spaced that they must be examined with a magnifying glass to distinguish their separate characters.

This particular coffin is considered a supreme example of the ancient Egyptian painter's art. Such refinement of drawing and beauty of coloring is no excellent state of preservation rarely have been found in the tombs. How such delicate tints could be preserved for 3,000 years the modern color manufacturer would give much to learn.

Predicting Speedy Trans-Oceanic Flights

Hamburg to New York in 36 Hours Says Aerial Expert

The day when trans-oceanic flights between Hamburg and New York will be made in 36 hours is not far distant, in the opinion of Dr. Edmund Rumpel, noted German aerial expert. Dr. Rumpel has devoted the past five years to the preparation of plans for huge aircraft capable of carrying 136 passengers and seven tons of freight.

Plans which Dr. Rumpel has evolved for huge aircraft to make the trip call for planes propelled by ten motors of 1,000 horsepower each and capable of attaining a maximum speed of 175 miles an hour.

The president of a large corporation had occasion one day to reprimand an employee for his inefficiency, whereupon the inefficient young man began finding fault with the way in which the president was managing affairs. The head of the corporation turned angrily toward the speaker.

"Are you the president of this corporation?" he demanded.

"No, sir; of course not," answered the employee.

"Well, then," thundered the president, "don't talk like a fool!"—Forbes Magazine.

Dick: Where did you go on your motor tour?

Demph: Gosh! Don't ask me, I was driving the car.

Explored Land Of Head Hunters

Scientist Secured Film Showing Process of Head Curing

Dr. H. E. Dickey, well-known scientist, and his wife, a few months ago, just finished an expedition, trip that carried them through the land of the head hunters and the most remote parts of South America.

Dr. and Mrs. Dickey, with a staff of film experts, have reached Para, Brazil, completing a trip that began last November and carried them across the Andes Mountains on muleback. They obtained a full motion picture record of the process of reducing and curing human heads as practiced by the Ileros of Eastern Ecuador. The Indians had just returned from one of their head hunting expeditions, which was found to be in retaliation for the kidnapping of their women by another tribe.

The party, which left Guayaquil, Ecuador, last November, crossed the Andes on muleback, encountering perpetual snow at an altitude of 14,000 feet within two degrees of the equator. They descended the eastern slope of the Andes into the dense jungle of Ecuador and then entered the country of the Ileros. Thence they trekked 300 miles overland through the jungle to the head waters of the Napo River. Embarking in canoes the explorers paddled down the Napo to the Amazon River, whence they proceeded to Iguitos, Peru. A 2,000-mile paddle still awaited them in order to reach Para.

Dr. Dickey, while in the land of the head hunters, saved the life of an Indian bitten by a venomous snake, and as a reward was presented with a head cured while the explorers were in the territory. Head hunting, the explorers learned, is invariably in retaliation for the kidnapping of women by other tribes and causes all the wars in that district.

The skin of the victim's head is removed entirely and treated for ten days with tanbark and hot sand. The cured head measures about six inches in diameter. The features are well preserved, and the lips sewn to prevent the escape of evil spirits. The head hunters are not interested in the heads of white men.

Dr. Dickey, who is a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, has spent 22 years in tropical South America and is well known as a geographer and explorer.

World Wants Trained Minds

Most Important Positions Go To Those With University Training

The world makes merry with the sweet graduate, the blandly superior "color of arts, panoplied in raiment," armed with a sheepskin, girded with a laurel wreath, and the like. But while the business man, the farmer, the workman may laugh at some of the fantastic tricks told before high heaven by a few of the products of our institutions of learning who find it difficult to adjust themselves to a workaday world, the university graduate of today is respected and appreciated. The world recognizes the value of a trained mind, and has entrusted most of its important positions to men who have had the advantages of a university training.—Regina Leader.

The Prince's Doubles

Several Young Men Who Resemble Hair to British Throne

The Prince of Wales has other doubles than the young American who was recently in London, and whose resemblance to the Prince has caused several misunderstandings. A wealthy Parisian not long ago was almost compelled to leave Biarritz owing to his being mobbed by people who thought he was the Prince.

In South Africa there is a young man who is called "Teddy the Ninth" by his friends. This young farmer is the same height and build as the Prince, and even shares his famous smile.

Canada Will Extend Business

Government Voted $375,000 For Commercial Intelligence This Year

The extension of Canada's commercial intelligence service was discussed in the House of Commons when a vote of $375,000 for this service during the coming fiscal year was passed. Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of trade and commerce, assured the committee that everything would be done to extend business in France and elsewhere.

A deaf man has been in the employ of the Glenora city water department for thirty years. He can tell the position of leaks in water mains by his teeth. He developed a system of placing a key or iron rod on a water main, and figuring the location of the leak by the vibrations felt through his teeth.

Canadian Patent Revenue Fifty-five per cent. of the revenue derived from the issue of patents and copyrights in Canada comes from abroad. In a return tabled in the house it is stated that the revenue of the patents office in the fiscal year 1925 was $500,000, and that 85 per cent. of the fees come from abroad.

Automobile Fatalities

Deaths From Motor Accidents Totalled 22,000 In U. S. In 1925

Automobile fatalities in the United States for 1925 totalled 22,000, an increase of approximately 2,200 over 1924, according to the report of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters now made public. The results were obtained by a study made by the bureau for the statistics committee of the National Safety Council.

The study shows that automobile fatalities, excluding collisions with streets cars and railroad trains, increased from 17,400 in 1924 to 19,800 in 1925. Fatal automobile grade crossing accidents mounted from 1,683 in 1924 to 1,784 in 1925.

The automobile death rate per 100,000 is shown by the report to have increased from 14.5 in 1923 to 15.7 in 1924, and to 17.3 in 1925. The increase from 1923 to 1924, therefore, was 6 per cent., while the increase from 1924 to 1925 was nearly 10 per cent. This would indicate not only that fatal automobile accidents are increasing in number, but that the rate of increase is rising.

Registrations of cars, the study shows, increased from 17,691,931 in 1924 to 19,954,347 in 1925. Fatality rates on the basis of registration have been decreasing for several years, but the rate for 1925 was practically the same as that for 1924.

Deaths of children under fifteen years old continue to be one of the most serious aspects of the automobile accident situation, the report says. During 1925 it is estimated that 6,300 children under fifteen years old were killed in automobile accidents as compared with 6,090 in 1924. One encouraging aspect of the situation, as developed in the study, however, is that deaths to children of less than fifteen years of age increased only about three and a half per cent. in 1925 over 1924, whereas the fatalities among adults increased about 15 per cent.

SIXTEEN YEARS USE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Has Shown One Mother There is Nothing to Equal Them

A constant use of Baby's Own Tablets for their children has proven to thousands of mothers that they are without an equal for babyhood and childhood ailments. One mother, Mrs. C. W. Jackson, R.R. 1, Gifford, Ont., writes: "We have used Baby's Own Tablets ever since our first baby was born sixteen years ago. We have seven fine healthy children and the Tablets is the only medicine they received in their early years. Our baby is one and a half years old, is walking and talking and weighs 25 pounds. Baby's Own Tablets—the only medicine he has ever had."

Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely safe for even the newborn babe. They are free from opiates and narcotics; act as a gentle laxative on the stomach and bowels and thus relieve constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make baby healthy and strong.

You can get Baby's Own Tablets from your druggist or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

England's King Never Dies

Heir Apparent Receives Title Immediately Sovereign Passes Away

All that is admitted is a "demise of the Crown." The moment the Sovereign passes away, his titles, dignity and power are automatically transferred to the heir apparent, who from that moment reigns in his stead. So, too, just as the King never dies, he is always of full age directly he ascends the throne, whether he has reached his twenty-first birthday or not. In practice, however, a regent is appointed for administrative purposes during his childhood. A species of sanctuary attaches to all royal residences, and no kind of judicial process can be lawfully executed in one, except against a criminal or crown debtor. A royal residence is also exempt from rates and taxes so long as the Sovereign occupies it. Thus, Marlborough House is rated, but Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle are not. On a "demise of the Crown" members of parliament, judges and naval and military officers are required to take a fresh oath of allegiance; and cabinet ministers surrender their portfolios.

Mapping Country From Aeroplane is Really "Surveying"

The word "surveyor" has so long been applied almost exclusively to men engaged in running lines and performing other primitive duties of the civil engineer that it is rather amusing to see it restored to its original meaning of one who looks down upon a thing from above. The aeroplane has done it. Canada is mapping much of its hitherto uncharted country from flying machines. The photographs thus taken make, when placed together, a continuous map that tells more about the country than an ordinary map would show.—Youth's Companion.

The Half-hour Speech

Preacher Had Right Idea About Length of Sermon

A preacher was waited on by a delegation and told that the congregation was not satisfied with his preaching; that they wanted him to preach longer. His reply was that he was born in Pennsylvania; that his father was an oil man; and that he had always heard his father say that any man who could not strike oil in half an hour was either boring in the wrong hole or else there was something wrong with his auger.

SUCCESSFUL FIELD DAY AT THE DOMINION EXPERIMENTAL STATION—LACOMBE

On Saturday, July 8th, about 300 farmers visited the Experimental Station for the annual Field Day on Forage Crops. All the plots and fields are in excellent condition and with live stock, poultry, gardens and bees also to visit, there was something of interest to everyone.

After some of the horses and cattle had been paraded a few of the newer farm implements were inspected. Among these a special wonder for killing weeds in growing grain and forage crops. This is very much better than the older method of harrowing. A spring tooth harrow has been found very satisfactory in taking out couch grass. These two implements were very strongly recommended as the weed problem is becoming yearly a greater menace.

Next on the programme was a tour in cars of the grounds, pastures and experimental fields. Many who were not familiar with the Station were surprised at the extent of the farm and the large number of experiments being carried on. There are fifteen different crop rotations and over 4,000 experimental plots. As forage crops for hay, pasture and ensilage were the special subject for this field day, the cars stopped at these plots. The statement was made that alfalfa was the sweetest crop on the farm, and several fields and numerous experimental plots which all looked as though they would yield very heavy crops were ample proof of this statement, particularly one field which has grown alfalfa for 7 years in succession. This year, sweet clover is an excellent crop but this is the one good crop in five years, as sweet clover usually winter kills. The method of inoculating for these crops was explained. A very valuable lesson was drawn from the variety plots of alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, alsike and white Dutch and the many varieties of Bromus grass, western rye grass and timothy. It was quite evident that only seed from northern grown sources was reliable.

The silage crops, corn, sunflowers, oats and mixtures of these were inspected, but these will be much more interesting later on at the time of the cereal Field Day which will be held about the first week in August. There is always something to be learned at the Experimental Station, and one farmer remarked that he had observed that the farmers who were the most frequent visitors to the Station and were always on hand for Field Days were the most progressive farmers in the district.

MARRIED

Macdonald—Ramsay

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay, Lacombe, was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon on Thursday, when their only daughter, Gertrude, became the bride of Mr. John Macdonald. Both bride and bridegroom are popular members of the younger set of the district. Rev. R. B. Layton officiated.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of lilacs and roses.

The bride was beautiful in a gown of apricot georgette with gold trimmings and slippers to match. She wore a gold forehead band and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and was given in marriage by her father, R. L. Ramsay.

Miss Lois Coverdale attended the bride, wearing a peach crepe de chine costume and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas. David Macdonald, brother of the bridegroom was the best man.

Mrs. R. L. Ramsay and Mrs. J. N. B. Macdonald, mothers of the bride and bridegroom, were matrons of honor.

bride, presided at the piano and played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin". Professor Touche sang during the signing of the register.

The bridegroom's present to the bride was a handsome check; to the bridesmaid, a silver mesh bag; to the best man a fountain pen; to the soloist, a pair of cuff links; and to the pianist, an onyx ring set with pearls. After the ceremony, a tempting luncheon was served, after which the happy couple travelled by train to Calgary and will motor from there to Banff. The bride travelled in a costume of brown-crepe back satin, with coat and hat to match. They were the recipients of many useful and handsome presents from friends in Alberta and Scotland. Upon their return they will reside at the new home that was recently built at the Macdonald nurseries.

Among the many beautiful presents received, was a set of flat silverware from the staff of the local telephone exchange, of which the bride was for some years a member. The Y.W.A. presented the young couple, both of whom were members with a cut glass celery bowl, while St. Andrew's United choir joined in sending them a beautiful cut glass bowl.

Professor Laird's Third Cross-Canada Tour

Professor Sinclair Laird, Dean of the School for Teachers, Macdonald College, makes his third annual tour "Across Canada and Back" with a party of Esquimaux leaving Toronto by Canadian Pacific Railway on July 19. Professor Laird's remarkable success with the two previous tours evoked such large demands for another of these "nonpareil" trips to the land of majestic peaks and purple mists that the third tour becomes a necessity, a national requirement.

A personal acquaintance with Canada's provinces is considered essential for every Canadian's education nowadays. Travel is a sound investment which not only maintains its value throughout life but adds continually to daily pleasure and efficiency. Nothing can take the place of the personal experience that comes through travel, leading educationalists the world over agree. In the realm of Canadian literature, history and geography, reading and teaching may be enhanced and brightened by personal familiarity after the subjects have been seen and admired.

Long after the trip has been completed there will remain in the hearts of those who have made the journey the imprint of quiet valleys, wooded forests, and nature's dignified solitude. As Edith Johnson sang of the Rocky Mountains:

Further than vision ranges,
Farther than eagles fly,
Stretches the land of beauty,
Arches the perfect sky,
Hemmed through the purple mists afar.

By peaks that gleam like stars on stars.

The trip to the West covers the Muskoka district, and the world-famous mining region of Sudbury Lake Superior is then skirted as far as Fort William, and thence to Winnipeg with a side trip to Winnipeg Beach, the Manitoban summer resort, and on to Indian Head, Regina, Moose Jaw and Calgary where the Canadian Pacific Rockies are entered through the Gap, two almost vertical walls of dizzy height, streaked and capped with snow and ice. Here we come to Banff, headquarters of the Rocky Mountains Park, a wonderful region of 2,761 square miles embracing rivers, lakes and noble mountain ranges.

From Banff to Windermere, 104 miles, the party under Professor Laird will go by automobile. Then from Windermere to Kootenay, through beautiful Kootenay Lake to Nelson. Leaving Nelson they pass through the Donkohor country to Penticton, skirt Okanagan Lake, cross Fraser River at Hope and proceed to Vancouver. After two days at Vancouver the party sails in Victoria, affording an opportunity of seeing the famous Crystal Gardens.

Travelling back to the East the trip takes in the Fraser and Thompson River Canyons, and in especial the marvellous Lake Louise district. At the latter may be seen the white smoke of avalanches that go thundering down from the glacier four miles away. Lake Louise is about a mile and a quarter long and nearly half a mile wide. The Indians say its waters are distilled from peacocks' tails and paved with mother-of-pearl, and into them pour those wild blue waters whose colors are mixed on the palette of the glaciers.

On the journey back East the trip is varied by calls at Edmonton and Saskatoon, while the awe-inspiring Devil's Gap near Kenora is also taken in. A full day is spent at each of these places. From Fort William the party embarks on a Canadian Pacific steamboat on which they traverse Lakes Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll whence a short trip to Toronto ends the journey.

It is by no means confined to travellers who belong to the teaching profession, and in former years a large proportion has been composed of people drawn from industrial, business and municipal circles who desire to increase in this pleasant and unique manner their acquaintance with the facts of their own country.

What is The BEST Investment?

IN THE FIRST PLACE, IF YOU WERE ASKED TO CHOOSE THE KIND OF BUSINESS YOU WOULD LIKE BEST TO OWN, YOU WOULD PROBABLY SAY: "I SHOULD LIKE TO OWN A BUSINESS IN WHICH I'D ALWAYS HAVE PLENTY OF GOOD, STEADY CUSTOMERS WHO WOULD ALWAYS BUY AT A FAIR PRICE EVERYTHING I TURNED OUT."

Does such a business exist, It does. It is the public service business, into which hundreds of thousands of people have put and are putting their money.

When you own part of a public service company you supply products that people, factories and whole cities would not willingly do without---public service companies keep right on producing and selling, day in and day out, good times or bad---people must have food and warmth. These earnings are steady because our board of public service commissioners regulate the security issues and rates of the public service company, so that it gets a fair price for the commodity it sells---fair to both the company and its customers.

Just Between Us!

TWO INCOMES ARE BETTER THAN ONE

- You Own a CASH Business -

When you invest in public service company securities you become part owner of a business which is practically on a cash basis. The money from which your dividends are paid is collected every month in many small sums from many customers.

MORE THAN 1300 PEOPLE IN

The Best Investment You Can Make

THE DOLLARS WHICH YOU PUT INTO PUBLIC SERVICE SECURITIES

become part of the enormous sum of more than 16 billion dollars which is invested in the public service industry---over four times as much as in the steel business, over eight times as much as in the automobile business, and over ten times as much as in the meat-packing business.

Five small western polls are not yet reported, but so far, Mrs. Paribly has a plurality of first votes over her combined opponents of LSI and is elected. The U.F.A. is to be congratulated on the great amount of work they did, and the splendid vote they rolled up; especially in the west country. Up to a week before polling day it was conceded that the west would vote against the U.F.A. candidate, but it was bad guessing.

THANKS

To all workers and supporters who assisted me in the Election I wish to extend thanks and appreciation.
I feel very pleased with the splendid vote polled, and with the faithful and loyal support of so many of my ola friends.

It is gratifying to note that there was no mudslinging or personalities either from our side or from our opponents so that the campaign has been clean in every respect.

While the offices of class Government have prevailed for the time, it is inconceivable that their success can be permanent in a country where all the foundations of Government are based on the principle of Government with out regard to class or creed or occupation—"Of the People, for the People, by the People."

Mr. W. F. Puffer.

A Pretty Wedding

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lundie, on Thursday, July 1st, when their second son John N. Lundie, was married to Molly, eldest daughter of Mr. Mark Murray of Wetaskiwin, the Rev. G. T. Harrison, officiating.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of His Honor Judge Mc-Donald of McLeod, who gave the bride away.

The decorations were most artistic in a scheme of red, white and blue, in honor of the bridegroom who was one of Canada's defenders.

Miss Rose Murray who presided at the piano, played the wedding march.

After the ceremony about forty guests sat down to a dainty lunch.

The bride wore a dainty frock of white georgette, with hat and shoes to match, and was assisted by her sister Miss Theresa Murray of the Calgary Herald Staff, who wore a bouffant dress of orchid pussy willow tulle and georgette. Mr. Douglas Lundie acted as best man.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a handsome Isabella fox stole, to the best man a pair of gold cuff links and tie clip, to the brides maid a pearl brooch and to the pianist a gold and amethyst brooch.

Among the guests attending were:
His Honor Judge and Mrs. A. M. Mc-Donald of McLeod, Douglas Lundie of Strathmore, Miss Sullivan of Wetaski-win, Arthur Lundie of Edmonton, Wm. Lundie of Red Deer, Miss Theresa Murray of Calgary, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs.
W. N. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. D. Calder, Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Hynes, Mrs.
H. A. Day, Cameron Fraser, Mrs. Aldwinkle, Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. F. R. Harrison, Mrs. Forster, Mr.
and Mrs. P. H. Winters, Mr. and Mrs.
Layton Wm. McWaters, Margaret Morrison, Norma Day, Margaret Masters.

The happy couple left for the coast on the noon day train.

EDMONTON EXHIBITION

The Edmonton Exhibition this year will have much of interest for all those who have been in Alberta during the past hundred years.

The Historical Pageant, commemorating the coming-of-age of the city and province, will be a truly artistic and educational treat. Participated in by a cast of 600 performers, trained in the historical scenes and dances by experts, and assisted by a chorus of 200 voices, it will be a spectacle of great beauty. Never before has such a stupendous production been attempted by local talent and those who miss it will undoubtedly regret it.

Another real attraction this year is the famous Band of His Majesty's Coldstream Guards, the most wonderful musical organization in the British Empire. The Band will play each day at the Edmonton Fair, and if you hear nothing else you will be amply repaid for your visit.

The Association has made the usual arrangements for the camping grounds for any out-of-town motor parties. These grounds are fully equipped for camping purpose and are free to out-of-town visitors.

Arrangements have also been made with the railways for excursion rates from all points in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

ville on Monday.

A number of some twenty from the village and district picnicked at Jackfish Lake on Saturday, and were almost overwhelmed with the severe heat, which registered 90 in the shade. At seven p.m. of the same day the heat registered 85.

As a result of the local rains and heat, the crops are forging ahead at remarkable speed. The wheat is in the shot blade, while one field near by is out in head.

Mrs. Woods of the Woman's Home Bureau service, will give a demonstration in Raffia Work for the U.F.W.A.
and all others who wish to attend
under the auspices of the Rose Leaf U. F. W. A. on July 19 to 21, at Wigmore's Log House. Free admission to this demonstration.
